"Origin" of Mahogany. The origin of the use of mahogany is said to have been as follows: A West Indian trader brought home several logs of mahogany as ballast for his ship. The trader's brother, a London physician, happened to be building a house, and his brother suggested that the logs would serve for ceiling beams. Acting on the proposal, the doctor gave orders to his workmen accordingly, but their tools were not able to make an impression on the hard wood. The doctor ordered fresh tools to be made, and at leagth succeeded in finding implements which would cut the timber. Delighted with his discovery he ordered a bureau to be made, and so beautiful was it that it attracted general attention .-New York Tribune.

Evils of the Day .- The Christian woman cannot afford to be mixed up with the customs and "Isms" of the day. They are tainted.-Rev. C. E. Winston, Methodist, Brooklyn.

Which .- It depends on whether a man loves the comfort of his family or his cups whether he is a blessing or a burden to his family .- Rev. M. N. Preston, Congregationalist, Culcago.

Great Men.-Great men have usually come in groups and in the midst of the company there has always been a greater man from whom they borrowed eminence.-Rev. C. W. Boyd, Methodist, Atlanta.

What Heaven Is .- Heaven does not mean church membership, nor social respeciability, nor paltry gifts of money, but heaven does mean holiness, principle, oneness with God, the Eden as it was before man fell,-Rev. T. A. Nelson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn.

The Hypcerite.-The hypocrite is he who proaches that liberty is the only virtue and that the Christian religion cannot stand liberty. The cheapest notoriety and the quickest comes to him who poses as a heretic,-Rev. C. A. Crane, Independent, Boston, Circumstances.-The social and financial condition has little or nothing to do with one's spirituality, except as he is influenced by it. But in the sight of God we are not saved or lost by our circumstances, but by our faith or lack of it.-Rev. C. L. Palmer, German Reformed, Kingston, N. Y.

Justice.-The great agitation in labor circles to-day is for justice. In your labor organizations, in your annuni conventions, in the resolutions which you pass and the measures which | much patience, it takes a duck about you urge you demand justice for yourself and your fellow workingmen,-Rev. P. F. O'Hare, Roman Catholic, New York City.

A Hell of Science.-The old theology said you will be damned for your sins. Modern science says, your sins not only have damned you, but they kill you. body and soul, so that you may drag through this world little better than a corpse, with not even enough life to realize that you are practically dead .-Rev. F. M. Bennett, Disciple, Lawrence,

Right and Wrong.-Man is a moral being. There is in him an intuition of right and wrong. To keep the judgment true is the great thing, for there are many distracting influences in the world round us, and it is necessary to have time and means to have the conscience or judgment quickened and made true.-Rev. Alex Esler, Disciple, Teronto, Canada.

The Lord's Prayer,-Many repeat the of precious truths that we will never Lutheran, Baltimore.

Ideals.-Every young man has a meatal conception of character which is six months, with like results. I had his ideal. The statesman, politician, educator, philanthropist, inventor, master mechanic, orator and writer are and Resolvent, and continued taking ideals after which young men of today mold and fashion their lives, build characters and shape their destinies .-Rev. Z. E. Bates, Disciple, Allegheny,

Habits .- One of the most important things in life is to form habits, and they cannot be formed too early in a man's career. There are all sorts of habits, some good and some bad. The good ones should be cultivated at all times. The formation of these habits form character, and the most trifling things show the trend of one's life .-Rev. S. T. Ford, Presbyterian, Lowell,

The Sinner.-The question is often asked if there will be another opportunity for the sinner who dies in his sins. Probably there is not a Christian that has not some time in his life wished there was such an opportunity. But we dare not teach such a doctrine, Everything in the scriptures teaches that there is no chance for the sinner who dies in his sins, but every chance for him this side of the grave.-Rev. Robert Hunter, Presbyterian, Philadel-

The Spirit of Unrest .- We cannot hide ourselves from the great spirit of unrest that is abroad-everywhere confusion, chaos, and the strife of tongues. There is a blind scramble for wealth, accompanied by an ever-increasing ust of strikes and labor riots in the industrial world; there is a loosening of morals and religious ties, a weakening of the sense of moral obligation, and the utter disregard of the claims of duty.-Rev. A. J. Brucklacher, Presbyterian, Brooklyn. Evolution .- Evolution as God's method in creation we gladly accept, but evolution standing by itself as a thecry for the redemption and saving of men is as cold starlight to the harvests of the world. The whole drift of organized society toward solidarity tends to minimize and render powerless the Individual. Against these tendencies we place our Gospel with its inherent, essential, and invincible hopefulness .-Rev. H. Hopkins, Coongregationalist, Williamstown, Mass.

Practice No Longer Observed in the

Theaters of New York. Have you noticed that eardy eating In theaters is almost a practice of the past? How often nowadays do you see men and women munching caramels duing the performance of a play? How often do you hear the merry bang of the chocolate machine which for a paltry 10 cents and the turn of a knob shoots sweetmeats into the air after the style of a released jack-in-the-box. Are the matinee girls of your acquaintance In the habit of carrying boxes and bags of bonbons to the theater?

Managers of attractions which play the various chief cities of the country assert that in New York caudy eating is not what it used to be and they wonder if the wave of popular disapproval which has banished the candy box from Broadway playhouses will finally reach Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and the other great theatrical centers of the United States. Once candy was sold in the lobbies of most of the local playhouses. Now only a few of them offer for sale sweetments of any kind.

Ten years ago the appetizing crunch of peanut brittle could be heard from the front row of the pit to the topmost bench in the gallery, but nowadays, alas, the peanut brittle has gone the way of the chocolate benbon, the toasted marshmallow, the gummy caramel and pecan glace. Alas and alack! but those were happy days when the femininity of Manhattan feasted its eyes on the matinee idols of Once-Upon-a-Time and rulned its dear little stomachs with confectionery.-New York

Geese Make Good Actors.

A farmer would scarcely believe that a goose requires only about sixty hours in order to prepare it for the footlights and a critical audience, and that a common pig, which has been bought in the market, will in thirty hours be competent to blossom forth as an actor. According to Clyde Powers, a trainer of wide experience and three days to learn how to march on the stage, to follow the chorus, and to march off again at the proper time; It takes a chicken a week or more. and a turkey cannot grasp the art of acting before six months' time. Mr. Powers has tried to train a pea-fowl, but he finds that it is impossible. A goose is the most intelligent of all the feathered tribe, and a goose is also the only one of the domestic fowls that show affection.-Helen Grant in Les-

Pumpkins are good feed for lambs in the fall, especially when they are troubled with paper skin, caused by worms in the intestines. Parasites develop rapidly and should never be allowed to exist if possible, as the sooner the work of stamping the less labor required. Minute fungi should be carefully sought and fought with the spraying mixtures. The spores increase so rapidly that a day's delay may result in heavy loss. Each form has its own habits, requiring prompt and hasty work for its suppression. Nearly all plant diseases are the result of fungus growth.

A wound made by removing a limb heals best if the cut is made close to the trunk or branch. A stub two or three inches long does not heal, and becomes a lodging place for spore of fungi and bacteria, which cause de cay and death of the tree. The splitting down of large limbs may often be avoided when pruning by sawing in from the under side first; but in ev ery case see that the wound is left clean and smooth. Wounds should be covered immediately with a coat of paint, shellae or grafting wax to keep to train the family dog as it is to train out the moisture and the spores before mentioned.

> Hot Water to Kill Borers. Water at a temperature of from 130 to 140 degrees will kill most insects and will not injure vegtable life. Acting on the idea it has been suggested that hot water be thrown up into the tree, of somewhat higher temperature than is needed, so as to allow for it to cool. The difficulty with this plan is that the orifice where the borer enters is so near the ground that the soil has to be dug away to get under it. A flexible wire can be inserted much more easily than to force hot water upward into the orifice the borer has made. The wire will also more certainly do its work and by having a barb at the end the borer may be withdrawn. But there are many places where the hot water insecticide may be applied more easily and safely than any other.

Sheep Flocks Falling Off. One of the most remarkable facts of modern times is the lessening number of the sheep on the continent, and also though not to such a large extent, in Great Britain, For the last thirty years sheep have been decreasing, one of the chief causes assigned being the decrease of the pastoral population, and the land in many cases being put to other uses, says the Butcher of Brus-

Wasting Stock Feed.

On many farnts corn is grown, the grain harvested and farm animals turned in which simply destroys threefourths of the entire crop. No improvement, no rotation, no care, no management, but a waste of valuable food, the only excuse for this wasteful system being that a profit can be derived with but little cost. Whenever a better system is practiced then begins enjoyment of profit and increase in every direction, all reaping a portion, from the landed proprietor to the humblest individual in the community.

This wasteful practice is not confined to any particular section, but to all portions of the country where corn is grown. The root of the evil is the desire of those who grow corn to avoid labor; and this saving of labor by allowing corn fodder to waste has brought more farms under mortgages than anything eise, while those who practice such methods only deprive themselves of greater gains and better results that could be obtained by the required labor and its careful applica-

Corn fodder is one of the valuable products of the farm, having a practical feeding value of two-thirds to threequarters that of good hay and sometimes more, and the fodder, corn and straw wasted is sufficient to nearly double the stock now kept on many farms.- Epitomist.

Mixing Manure with Soil.

The process of decomposition may be carried on in the presence of pure earth only, or of earth intermingled with cut clover, leaves, etc., or in the presence of muck, which is an assemblage of inert vegetable matter, and compost dung hills may be formed according to these methods. The proportions between the ingredients are fixed by no determinate laws, and consequently great liberty is allowable to the operator. In fact, such is the uncertainty of the composition that almost every farmer adopts one peculiar to himself, and with equal success. No one need follow implicitly any rules which have been laid down, but may vary and multiply his experiments according to the suggestions of circumstances or the dictates of convenience. The only use of intermixing the soil with the manure is to imbibe the gaseous elements of vegetable life and hinder their dissipation. If there be much soil these elements will be diffused through it with less den sity and compression; if little, it will be more abundantly saturated and enriched with the nutritive vapors. As a matter of fact nine cashlers out of every ten try to get rid of new money as quickly as possible after receiving it. There is grave danger to the average paying teller in handling unusued money.

"New bank notes stick together Frequently the ink is not thoroughly dry. During our rush period we handle a great deal of money. It is the easiest thing in the world to make mistakes with new bills when in a hurry to relieve a long line of walting patrons. When possible we give out the new bills during hours when there is no rush. I'd rather pay out 1,000,000 old bills than 100 new ones."

"These bills are new enough, that's sure. But I seem to be a twenty short. I'll count them over to make sure. No, they are all here. The two were stuck together."

"That's just it," laughed the cashier. "One cannot be too careful in handling them. I count old bills over twice. I have to count a pile of new bills half a dozen times."-New York

Not Excluding American Students. The authorities of the University of Berlin say that statements published abroad to the effect that the stringent regulations concerning the admission of students are designed to exclude many Americans altogether are untrue. Any graduate of an American college who presents a passport and the diploma of bachelor of arts or any other equivalent degree will be admitted without any questions. It is true that the diplomats of some of the smallest institutions bearing the name of colleges are omitted from the list of those recognized. The new regulations are directed against Russians not having sufficient means of support or who are academically unqualified.
